
RANKING LIST 1959

This year's Ranking List has been complicated by the cancellation of Lakeland Slalom. As a result of this it has had to be compiled from the remaining four competitions.

However with a maximum of four events not many people had qualified for next year's first division which therefore would have become unbalanced. To rectify this the relegation percentage has been altered by the Slalom Committee.

Apart from this, no changes have been made to the system proposed at the beginning of the year.

What comes out of the pot this year? Well, the first five places have been taken by the five who were in the team for Geneva, headed quite rightly by Paul Farrant (who held this position in 1955). The big surprise is Lincoln Hall, Twickenham's shooting star. Lincoln well deserved his promotion to first division at the beginning of the season and has come to the front very quickly indeed. Also climbing up are Nigel Morley and Brian Harrison.

The winners of the second division events are promoted and their names can be seen in the list. All of them have worked their way to this position and we can expect them to strengthen first division considerably. At the same time considerable talent still lies in second division as next year's competitions will show.

The effect of the newly created third division has been most marked during the year. The standard has fairly leaped up and more interesting courses arranged.

We can also report a big increase in the number of people who have taken part during the year; approximately 120, compared with about 85 last year.

Regrettably omitted from the last issue was the news that Mary and Bill Horsman have now a second daughter, Sally.

Since then Heather and Bill Goodman have also become parents and have embarked on a long term training course for Ann. It seems that the future holds many more Horsman/Goodman rivalries.

The editorial staff also has particular pleasure in recording the engagement of Mr. Julian Shaw to Miss Joyce Critchley.
